36. Motion was made by Faccioli and seconded by Stadter to accept the changes to Board Governance, Reporting Executive Sessions. It is expected that the published minutes of the General Board Meeting record that the Board went into Executive Session, the purpose of the session and the outcome of the discussion. For example, the general minutes of the meeting may record that, "the Board went into Executive Session to consider advancement and relicensing of judges." The general minutes would then record the outcome of that consideration, including the name of the maker and second of the motion. The outcome of voting on motions will either be noted as "carried" or "denied". The use of "carried unanimously" shall be used only if requested by the Chair and agreed to by the Board. The general minutes will include the individual vote of each board member by name. Exempt from reporting in the general minutes would be the outcome of charges, complaints or protests which were found to be groundless. In accordance with Standing Rules 109.2.7, the Board will maintain separate minutes of the Executive Session Meeting, in the form of a confidential addendum if discussions and actions are taken on matters prohibited from dissemination to Members under By-Law 19.2.7.

38. Motion was made by Vasquez and seconded by Klamm to adopt the changes to By-Laws 19.2.7 to read: "The full minutes, except any minutes relating to charges, complaints, or protests which have been found to be groundless, excluding specific information that may be discussed under Article 19.2.4, of the meetings of the Board of Directors shall be provided to any member upon the request of that member and payment by the member of the cost of reproducing and mailing those minutes.

Motion carried with Bourreau, Cornwell, Klamm, Patton and Vasquez opposed.

Adler and Stadter voted yes although they were against it, feeling that the membership should decide. Vasquez and Patton felt it was the consensus of the minority that changing alter finals up to top ten is only going to continue ‘altering’ our award value. There will always be reasons to change how we award participants but we need to remember that competition is not a bad thing. The bottom line is cat shows are supposed to be a competition. Yes, there are beautiful alters out there. There are also many beautiful Kittens, Cats, and HHP’s. We continue to ‘alter’ our awards in an effort to increase participation. We used this logic in changing the HHP’s finals up to top ten. Did this increase HHP participation? No. We used this logic to go to top 25 Regional Winners. Did this increase participation? No, it only now made it possible to get an RW in one/two show(s). The only thing we seem to be doing by lessening our requirements to awards is lessening the value of our awards.

MEMBERSHIP BALLOT

Marketing Strategic Plan

TICA’s Marketing and Outreach Committee offers their analysis, thoughts and recommendations for a short and long term marketing plan. Initial discussion and analysis was conducted with approximately 25 TICA members (judges, applicants and trainees) at the Albuquerque CEU Fiesta on June 12 and continued with discussion and planning the following day among members of the Committee and guests. Finally, a draft document was circulated among all those who had participated in discussions and all members of the Marketing Committee.

We welcome discussion.
TICA is a Business

Though historically operating as a not for profit organization, TICA has only recently been given nonprofit status by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. TICA is, and always has been, a corporation, subject to the limits and laws governing this type of business structure and including the fiduciary responsibility of its elected officials and officers to put the welfare and best interests of the corporation above their own personal or other business interests and to use appropriate care and diligence when acting on behalf of the corporation, including the personal acquisition of knowledge and skills needed to understand and execute responsibilities. They are expected to exercise reasonable prudence in carrying out their duties to achieve the best interests of the corporation.

TICA’s “business” is a Registry of Cats. In accordance with TICA’s prior business planning, TICA’s success and health is partly measured by its registration activity.

The following graphic depicts registrations by year among select registries.
The following tracks the registration of selected TICA breeds.

!TICA Registrations – Select Breeds

An important set of data not available to the Committee is a breakdown between registrations originating within North America and those outside North America. Intuitively, the Committee feels that a decline in North American registrations is masked by growth outside North America – for both U.S. based registries.

What Does TICA Have to Market?

Fabulous felines, fun and friendship, of course! In a nutshell, TICA must market Cats, the Cat Fancy, and TICA, itself.

While cats currently enjoy an increased popularity, they are yet to enjoy the same perceived value as dogs. Much marketing, research and information focuses on dogs, with a noticeable lack of the presence of things “feline.” TICA is in a unique position to supply information and expertise regarding cat behavior and care to cat lovers and enthusiasts all over the world.

TICA’s basic business centers on the preservation of our unique cat breeds. While we embrace “ALL CATS” and cherish the non-pedigreed cat, a primary mission is to preserve the breeds and support the breeding and showing of healthy cat breeds. TICA’s cat shows, title and award programs recognize this effort.

Finally, it is important to market TICA, our organization. By striving to be the “go to” for all things “cat”, TICA becomes preeminent in the pet industry world and will attract additional corporate partners to support the advancement of the organization and the value of the cat as a companion animal. Clearly by our participation at pet expos and vet conferences, we have already attracted new corporate business partners.

Analysis Time

Considerable brainstorming time was spent focusing on scanning the environment for political, economic, social and technological factors that could affect TICA either positively or negatively and present opportunities. In addition, TICA was discussed as a business to identify strengths, weaknesses, and threats that could affect our association and its success.

Following reflect brainstorming data in those areas:

With apologies, the Committee recognizes that their analysis is U.S.-centric, but still very important to TICA’s future. Many observations apply all across TICA’s world. Following are the primary environmental changes that influenced the Committee’s discussion and recommendations.

Political Change

There is a noticeable lack of animal advocates except for the animal rights advocates (at both a local and national level.) More and more local governments in the U.S. are passing pet limits, mandatory spay/neuter and breeder licensing. With the lobbying for such legislation, animal rights activists are probably responsible for a cultural shift to “Adopt Not Shop” – causing the purchase of a pedigreed cat to be considered less socially acceptable than “rescue-ing.”

Social Change

The Millennials: At the same time, a new generation is growing, with different views and perceptions of the world. The “Baby Boomers,” who had been our cat fancy base, are rapidly taking second – and third place – to an upcoming group called the Millennials.

The U.S. Census Bureau reports that Millennials, or America’s youth born between 1982 and 2000 (approximately 16-35), number 83.1 million, exceeding the 75.4 million baby boomers. This tech- and text-savvy group comprises 27 percent of the U.S. adult population, and, by 2018, their spending power will reach $3.39 trillion. Market researchers note that there are currently 43 million pet owners in the 18- to 34-year-old-age group—which is 31 percent of all pet owners. “About 74 percent of millennial pet owners own a dog, nearly half own a cat,” said Bob Vetere, President and CEO of the American Pet Products Association.

The following quotes are taken from pet industry readings.

- “Quite simply, not understanding them, not finding ways to be relevant or engaging to them, and not adapting to their new expectations are the easiest ways for a brand to fail.” Kerry Sutherland, owner of K. Sutherland PR

- “Millennials learn of pet products through the Internet more than any other generation, but they use pet product company websites less than any other group. They tend to spend more on their pets than previous groups, and products that previous generations may have found as discretionary, the millennials are finding as necessary.” Bob Vetere, President and CEO of the American Pet Products Association.
While the Millennials are devoted and discriminating pet owners, they also are presented with many, many ways to spend their leisure/entertainment time, are very tech savvy, and devotees of social media.

Cats Rule: Somewhat unexplained is the current social fascination with cats. There are more cat themed videos and photos on the web and social media than any other subject. We see cat cafes, cat video festivals, cats used in commercials, cat apps and even a CatCon.

Technology Change

Technology has advanced to the point that people are literally able to hold it in their hands. Technology is a necessity in allowing TICA to communicate with and service our customers and potential customers.

Technology will play an even more important role in the life of “The Millennial.” “Many of these millennials grew up leashed to the Internet. As a result, the 18- to 34-year-olds generally prefer a convenient, mobile shopping experience,” according to a generational-spending study from The NPD Group Inc. in Port Washington, N.Y., and the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

TICA – The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly

TICA definitely has a lot going for it. It is genetics based (science integrated with cats), has a knowledgeable and expert judging panel, recognizes and honors both pedigreed and non-pedigreed cats, has strong corporate sponsors, and enjoys exposition opportunities that give it public presence and club support.

On the other hand, we still have low brand awareness – in part due to the fact that the cat fancy, in general, doesn’t have the visibility of the dog fancy. We are lacking in our ability to communicate current information – especially to our clubs.

TICA’s good fortune has always included a cadre of dedicated enthusiasts, accessing their personal resources of skills, abilities and finances. The reliance on the donations of time and talent from volunteers should be appreciated not overused. Evaluations of the tasks needed may be necessary to determine a distinction between utilization of volunteer organizational talent and taking advantage of good will. In other organizations this frequently results in “burn out” and the loss of the person’s skills and pivotal organizational knowledge when they depart to other avocations.
TICA finds itself poorly staffed to implement new ideas and technology quickly. And, in reviewing the data on where the “cat lovers” are around the world, TICA has limited presence in some important developing areas. (These issues are not addressed in this plan as the Committee feels these are more within the purview of the TICA Board of Directors.)

Marketing – To Whom and Why

The Committee listed the following as potential market targets and purposes:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Market Group</th>
<th>Purpose</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Cat lovers, their friends and contacts</td>
<td>• Appreciation of the cat as a companion animal and its proper care</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Children and families</td>
<td>• Advocate for the right to shop or adopt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• People who are likely to stereotype cats negatively</td>
<td>• Potential purchasers, breeders and/or exhibitors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Communities of color</td>
<td>• Accessibility to breeders</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Influencers – veterinarians, other pet industry businesses, lawmakers</td>
<td>• Brand awareness – position as “cat authority”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Shelter and “rescue” people</td>
<td>• Registry of choice</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Writers and media</td>
<td>• Member/breeder loyalty</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Exhibitors, breeders and TICA clients</td>
<td>• Corporate partners</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Where There’s a Will, There’s a Way

The Committee feels that TICA’s most important ways of reaching the target groups are through cat shows, pet expos, pet industry conventions and activities, social media/technology and educational outlets. Additionally, the Committee agrees that, given the huge diversity of our target populations, many different ways and means must be utilized to reach them. The Committee agrees that TICA’s #1 marketing tool is “The Cat Show”.

Pet Expos: TICA currently has a partnership agreement for booth space or show space with Amazing Pet Expos, partners with WPA’s America’s Family Pet Expo and participates in several other pet expos around the U.S. TICA has also supported presence at other pet expos outside the U.S. and should continue to evaluate opportunities as they arise. While the pet expo presents a challenging show environment, it is an important educational outlet for cats, the cat fancy and TICA.

Industry Conventions: The pet industry continues to grow and is planning for the influence of the Millennials. TICA is the only feline registry member of both PIJAC (Pet Industry Joint Advisory Council) and WPA (World Pet Association). Our memberships give us access to industry research and insight. With the printing of the full color breed poster, TICA created a perfect opportunity to participate in various veterinary conferences, including the American Association of Feline Practitioners. Additionally, TICA was in attendance at Texas Unites for Animals. These have all been excellent exposure for TICA and have resulted in tremendous educational opportunities, corporate sponsorships, and dialog.

Companion animal-related scientific conferences merge as an important and strategically significant opportunity to positively market TICA, its breeds and members. The “genetic registry” characterization of TICA provides unparalleled ethos in scientific communities and among registries of any species. Feline breeds and genetic conditions are frequently discussed and TICA should be aware and potentially active in those conversations. The opportunity to establish greater collaboration between enthusiasts and researchers is mutually beneficial.

The Committee believes that other convention/conference opportunities exist for TICA to attend where a “cat presence” would be useful. We find that many conferences and conventions are VERY dog, rather than feline, oriented. We want to “Blow the Stereotype!”

Social Media/Technology: Even within the current demographic and not considering the considerable influence the Millennials are expected to have, TICA makes marginal use of technology to reach our potential markets. TICA is fortunate to have a dedicated group of volunteers who keep the Facebook Page fresh and fun, but other means of reaching our demographic (or desired demographic) are pretty limited – Twitter, Instagram, Pinterest, primarily. Twitter and Instagram could be used during events such as expos and conferences when there is already a social media push going with the event organizers. We should be able to piggyback on other social media networks. Instagram could be used to educate people on what cat shows look like and share the fun. A social media guide could be useful to explain the use of hashtags, and which ones to use at shows, such as #TICA, #catshow, #catsofinstagram.

LinkedIn is also a valuable social media resource that lends TICA professional credibility, and is useful in branding TICA as the expert on “all things cat.” Those who work to put on shows could be encouraged to list TICA activities under volunteer experience.

A coordinated and active social media presence which includes generating information about TICA to be published and posted is extremely important and desirable. Unfortunately, the ability to reliably pursue this task is limited due to staffing.

Education: There is much that TICA has to offer about cats, from our judges and their interaction with breeders and public at shows to TICA University (TICA U). Other resources include our judges and members in scientific/research areas who could be used to insert TICA into serious feline study areas and enforcing the idea that TICA is a serious, professional organization, and the “go to” place for all things “cat.”

Recent attempts have been made to revitalize TICA U, but the effort suffers from the lack of a coordinated plan and staffing to concentrate on updates, refreshes, and actual input of content. The Committee recommends dedicated staff to making TICA U a more effective educational tool.

A proposal was made for a more formalized Education Committee. The Education Committee would be responsible for the oversight of cat related educational offerings through an expanded role of TICA U. The Education Committee would be comprised of a Chairman, and Program Coordinators to coordinate, develop, and maintain the activities of TICA U. TICA U’s audience would be the following groups:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>General Public</th>
<th>TICA Exhibitors</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Veterinary Community</td>
<td>Cat Breeders (Cat Enthusiasts)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pet Products Industry</td>
<td>Breed Committees</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Judges</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>

TICA U’s role would be expanded to include not only educating the general public as to the care, health and love of cats, but could also develop and offer curriculum for:

- Beginning breeders – e.g., Cats 101, similar to that which is required by LOOF to become a breeder in France.
- Possibly extended to offer a professional educational program for cat breeders that would be developed and accredited by a respected university.
- A depository of continuing education resources for the various groups identified above, such as reference materials from breed seminars, CEU events, educational symposiums, webinars, and online courses.
The Education Committee would work in tandem with the Marketing and Genetics Committees, to provide for the dissemination and development of continuing education opportunities on the TICA U website.

The Committee recommends using TICA U as an educational platform, along with the TICA website but recommends a commitment of staff resources to be successful and effective.

The Best for Last – Cat Shows: As mentioned before, cat shows are TICA’s best and foremost way of marketing cats, the cat fancy and TICA. In order to attract the attention of potential breeders, exhibitors, and influencers, to the extent possible, TICA shows need to be an “event.” They need to define and market to target audiences.

- TICA should have a Club Portal on the tica.org website for the communication of and distribution of resources available for clubs. This should include the information on how to put on a show, logos, sponsorship possibilities and general ideas and resources, supported by TICA.
- Shows should try to reach and be relevant to a multitude of audiences – Baby Boomers to Millennials
- Shows should include interaction of cats and spectators – cat ambassadors, kissing booth, games involving breeds, narrative about breeds
- TICA signage should be prominent; the Marketing and Outreach Committee will develop uniform signage
- Large shows should consider a dedicated TICA booth – a one stop shop – for information and distribution of TICA literature and materials
- Onsite HHP registrations might be possible at larger shows
- “Selfie” opportunities
- Increase awareness of local shows
- TICA “apps” to alert visitors when their favorite breed is in a ring, connect to catalog, and connect to catalog and breed descriptions.
- Encourage judges, as time allows during the day, to present and talk about the cats in their ring to spectators and exhibitors alike. This discussion can range from what the judges are looking for when they judge a cat against a standard to Household pets to scoring and any variety of topics.

How About In Reach?

We’ve talked a lot about outreach activities, but how about activities aimed at recognizing and supporting our current members, exhibitors and breeders? Certainly, providing more information on breeding and health issues on TICA U is a plus for our breeders, along with providing access to the breeds and breeders through the outreach activities. Judges should be encouraged to be more vocal during judging in stating what they are and are not looking for in breeds. If we want to encourage healthy breeds, we have to discuss in the rings what we want to see and what we don’t want to see.

As we fancy ourselves as being the “friendly” organization, the Committee was interested in supporting a regional proposal to provide a “hospitality” bag to new exhibitors. The Committee will look into how to support this effort at the corporate level.

The Committee believes polling TICA members would be useful for further marketing planning. The poll would attempt to gather their thoughts on issues like: Why do you show? What would you like to see at shows? Etc.

The Committee also feels that the monthly TICA e newsletter could be a more effective communications tool with a dedicated resource.

The Committee also discussed the development of a “loyalty program” and may make a recommendation at a later date.

Finally, the Committee felt that the current lack of resources will stymie efforts to implement marketing and communications efforts. It is recommended that resources be allocated to hire a person to be responsible for supporting TICA communication, education, publications and outreach efforts.

TICA Resources

TICA is rich in the number of and variety of outlets and materials it has at its disposal for marketing purposes. TICA is now publishing two coloring books, one just now available in Spanish. These books are directed to children, but with the current adult coloring craze, they are also appealing to adults. Many of the books are being used in classrooms and veterinarian waiting rooms, along with primary distribution at pet expos, cat shows and events. The term, TICA’s Colorful World of Cats, has been trademarked.

TICA’s visitor guide, TICA’s World of Cats (also trademarked) has been an important publication for all outreach events. The publication includes much of the same information available in current brochures, but also includes pictures and descriptions of all of TICA’s currently recognized cat breeds. The publication is currently in production with a new cover, fresh content, and updated breed
The guide provides an advertising outlet to both TICA breeders, corporate partners and corporate advertisers.

The full color breed poster has been a huge success within the veterinarian, vet school, shelter, and grooming areas. It has been an important calling card for TICA at animal veterinary events. The Committee feels distribution has lagged and a way to continue distribution outside of the currently planned conference events needs to be developed.

TICA U and the main TICA website have been discussed previously. Both have great potential as educational outlets for both TICA’s clients and potential clients.

A special TICA logo has been developed for use in outreach events. Sporting a stylized cat, it immediately identifies TICA’s name with all things “cat.”
Summary of Recommendations

1. The Committee recommends finding additional conference and event opportunities for TICA to attend where a “cat presence” would be useful. We find that many conferences and conventions are VERY dog, rather than feline, oriented. We want to “Blow the Stereotype!”

2. Recent attempts have been made to revitalize TICA U, but the effort suffers from the lack of a coordinated plan and staffing to concentrate on updates, refreshes, and actual input of content. The Committee feels that TICA U is a valuable educational tool for all members of our target groups. A proposal was made for a more formalized Education Committee. The Education Committee would be responsible for the oversight of cat related educational offerings through an expanded role of TICA U. Whether through a formal Education Committee or not, The Committee recommends dedicated staff to making TICA U a more effective educational tool.

3. TICA should have a Club Portal on the tica.org website for the communication of and distribution of resources available for clubs. It would include information on how to put on a show, logos, sponsorship possibilities and general ideas and resources, supported by TICA. A social media guide would be a useful addition.

4. TICA signage should be prominent and uniform.

5. The Committee recommends creating a “tool chest” of ideas to be available to clubs in order to make the shows “interactive.” This could include supplies distributed at the TICA corporate level.

6. The Committee recommends it pursue corporate level support for a new exhibitor welcome bag and possible “swag.”

7. The Committee recommends polling TICA members to gather their thoughts on issues like: Why do you show? What would you like to see at shows? Etc. This input would be useful for further planning by the Marketing Committee.

8. The Committee recommends have a dedicated resource for the monthly TICA e-newsletter in order to make it a more timely and effective communication and educational tool.

9. The Committee would like to pursue the idea of a “loyalty program” for TICA members.

10. It is recommended that resources be allocated to hire a person to be responsible for supporting TICA communication, education, publications and outreach efforts. TICA should have clear and consistent delivery systems for information, rules, and materials. A communications person who takes the lead on getting information out to everyone, without a duplication of efforts, would be key in TICA providing a clear and consistent message.

11. A plan to further push the distribution of the breed poster needs to be developed.

12. The Marketing Manager should continue efforts to recruit corporate partner support in order to implement or offset the cost of implementation of marketing projects as possible.
